Move Spy Case, Judge Asked

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 2 (AP) — Attorneys for Richard Craig Smith, accused of selling agents' identities to the Soviet Union, have asked a Federal district judge to move their client's trial to Seattle. The lawyers argued that surveillance of Mr. Smith in Bellevue, Wash., by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, before he was taken into custody April 4 in Virginia, amounted to a de facto arrest. The prosecution maintains he should be tried here in the district where he was arrested. Judge Richard I. Williams reserved judgment.
